

Masters in Finance Employment Report

Graduating class of 2025

London
Business
School

Introduction from the Head of Career Centre

I am delighted to share that 83% of our 2025 Masters in Finance Full-time (MiFFT) graduates accepted job offers within three months of graduation – an impressive outcome in today's dynamic and competitive global employment landscape.

Our graduates have navigated shifting economic conditions, technological transformation and changing skills requirements, securing roles across 20 global locations. Their career mobility is particularly impressive: 76% changed sub-sector after completing the programme, while 47% changed both sector and location. This demonstrates the breadth of opportunities available to our graduates and their confidence in pursuing new directions.

The UK remains a leading destination, with 55% of graduates continuing their careers here, reaffirming London's position as a global financial centre. At the same time, graduates are taking their expertise and networks further afield, reflecting the truly global nature of the London Business School MiF experience.

As expected from this specialist cohort, 83% of graduates who secured employment are pursuing careers in finance. The remaining 17% have moved into consulting, fintech, industrials and healthcare, highlighting both the depth of their financial expertise and the versatility of the skills developed during the programme.

A London Business School education is more than a degree: it equips students with the knowledge, networks and perspectives to navigate change and seize opportunities throughout their careers. We congratulate our MiF graduates on their achievements and look forward to seeing where their ambition, expertise and global perspective take them next.

"London Business School empowered me to explore unfamiliar territory and venture into career paths that once felt outside my world. A morning in the Digital Investing classroom sparked an interest in the tech side of business, far removed from my previous experience, and I now work in Tech Strategy, bringing my analytical lens from investing into a new world of tech and strategy."

“The Masters in Finance allowed me to combine my passion for satellites and rockets with my background in finance to launch SarynSpace, a space fintech company building quantitative orbital credit risk models. As an immigrant founder, the London Business School network opened doors that otherwise wouldn’t have been accessible—it gives you global credibility before you even step into the room.”

“The Masters in Finance gave me a genuine network, exposure to different cultures and perspectives, and a base in London that shaped my career in ways that went far beyond any single class. Most importantly, many of the friendships I made during the programme are still some of my closest connections today.”

“The MiF opened the door to my move to London and reshaped my career trajectory. Studying alongside classmates from around the world strengthened my ability to collaborate across cultures, while the world-class faculty and global alumni network gave me the knowledge and connections to take my career further.”
